NEW YORK HERALD, FRIDAY, AUGUST 2, 1801

code, but not according to the laws of war. The Southern rebels stole our forts, arsenals, mints, ships and munitions of war, and they confiscated the property of Northern men at the South, and cancelled debts due to Northern men to the amount of a hundred and fifty millions of dollars. The Journal of Commerce has sympathized with the rebels and their doings all through, praising the chief burglar, Floyd, and giving aid and comfort to the enemy as far as words could go. Now, if the United States government should, by way of reprisals, seize the property of the rebel government, that e only paying them off in their own coin. We will not ask Master Sleek to justify this course, but we claim the same amount of sympathy for it that he has so freely given the them rebels for the same description of acts.

CULINARY WANTS OF THE ARMY .- We publish elsewhere a report of James N. Sanderson to the Sanitary Commission of the United States, on the subject of feeding the federal troops. We are compelled to believe that both report and commission are humbugs, and productive of no earthly good to our soldiers. An everlasting round of just such commissions, and similarly appointed travellers on tours of inspection, has ecome a chronic evil fashion, growing out of fregularities in the commissariat which it is out of their province to remedy. Such persons as Mr. Sanderson are very politely welcomed by generals and colonels, and a good deal of mutual glorification, and empty theorizing succeeds to a good dinner, and then there is fired offa report! Meanwhile, our men go starving into battle, with no provision for the woundedbeds, blankets, bandages and lint all wanting food is doled out to them with a mean miserliness that can only be accounted for by collusion between certain officers and the sutlers; regiments are reduced to rags, and whole companies cannot muster a whole pair of shoes, and the War Department applies no remedy. Mr. Sanderson, of course, adverts to the sources of some of these evils; but they are not in his power to heal, and it is nonsense to talk of the necessity of "good cooks" when the victuals upon which they should operate are wanting. If the commissariat will do its duty faithfully, sanita, ry commissions and their agents may equally be dispensed with. We want investigation and correction of abuses, not essays on military gastronomy.

THE SECESSION PRESS AND GENERAL McCLEL-T.AN .- Efforts are being made by those metropolitan journals which represent the rebel interest, to snarl away the popularity of the new Commander-in-Chief on the Potomac. His military efficiency is questioned by the News, on the ground that he issued a "ridiculous bulletin" in Western Virginia. Our not usually very fastidious neighbors are equally unwise and unjust thus to carp over a slight offence against good taste. General McClellan has proved himself to be a prompt, gallant and efficient commander, and this is all that the country wants. He acquired the respect and esteem of British army officers, during the Crimean war, to such an extent that many of those who met him and witnessed his discriminating gallantry did not hesitate to predict that his name would, some day, blaze forth in greatness to the world. if an opportunity were ever afforded him to distinguish himself. General Scott has also pronounced him to be the only man in the federal army capable of manœuvring one hundred thousand soldiers into the field. With such recommendations to public confidence, no very close scrutiny will be tolerated into modes of expression, under the influence of the excitement produced by rapid successes and crowning victories.

NEW YORK CANDIDATES FOR BRIGADIER GENE-BAIS.-We perceive that of the twelve names selected by the New York Congressional delegation, for recommendation to the President as Brigadier Generals, several, at least, are officers of a high order of merit. Major Doubleday and Captain Seymour both did gallant service at Fort Sumter: General Burnett and Colonel Patrick are known for their gallant services in the Mexican war; and not only these four, but asiso Colonel Stocum and Major Viele, were all West Point graduates. Colonel Blenker has served with distinction as an officer, in Prussia, and the skill of Colonel Durvee in disciplining and perfecting military organizations has be come universally acknowledged. Thus eight of the dozen are unexceptionable recommends tions, and some of the remainder may be good for aught we know to the contrary.

CONFISCATION OF REBEL PROPERTY.-Aminadab Sleek, of the Journal of Commerce, bewails the proposition of the HERALD that the government should seize upon cotton and other property of rebels, and calls it an invitation "to isteal!" How considerate Aminadab has become since the interests of his rebel friends have become jeopardized. Has he forgotten the year out and year in defences which were elaborated in his pious journal, of the wholesale robberies of Secretaries Floyd and Cobb? The federal government was delivered over with all its possessions to the fate of the Canaanites, and the "chosen children" of chivalry were entitled to all they could lay hands upon. But now, forsooth, that the day of retribution has arrived, hands off-to retaliate would "revolt the moral sense of the American people." Oh

GREELEY & Co. IN THEIR SECOND CHILD smoon.-Hen. Massa Greeley and the members of Lis Tribune-or rather Jacobin-Association seem to be in their second childhood. Thus in yesterday's Tribune they say, "we admit that every general or other commanding officer en-gaged in that deplorable (Bull run) battle did his entire duty as a strategist and a hero, and that no blame whatever should be attached to any one." It is proposed to start a subscription to buy a donkey and cart for Massa Greeley, and a donkey and saddle for each of the mem thers of the association. In this sort of a chariot, and with attendants thus mounted, poor Greeley will head a triumphant procession through the Central Park in celebration of the success of his jupport of the administration of his favorite, Honest Old Abe Lincoln.

VELY PALTRY SQUABBLES.-The confidence seen of different members of the Cabinet have Been engaged, lately, in retailing to the public the pros and cons of the mean and contemptiele jealousies by which the antechambers of the departments are convulsed. The particufars of every snarl among members of the admi. istration, are thus indicted upon the country. We perceive that army officers are about to follow this very unedifying example. Colonel Richardson has published a report of his shere in the late battle, and Colonel Miles believing himself to be reflected on in it, announces that he is about to come out with a reply. Very soon we shall have dozens of colonels, majors and captains pouring out their recriminations upon each other through the press. This is almost too mean work to criticise. Let Cabinet members and army officers accept the misfortunes of the past and profit by them. Let the miscalculations, mismanagement and jobbery of the last quarter of a year be re placed by vigorous, purified action which will satisfy the patriotic community; but, excepting such official reports as should properly reach us through regular channels-from colonels to their generals, and from them to the Commander-in-Chief-the greater silence that is maintained respecting the past the better.

PRINCE NAPOLEON IN PHILADELPHIA.

He Visits the Mint, the Cemeteries, Fairmount Park, Receives a Ducking, &c. OUR PHILADELPHIA CORRESPONDENCE.

PRILADELPHIA, August 1, 1861. Prince Napoleon arrived here near midnight on Wednes. day. He took quarters at the La Pierre House, on Broad street, below Chestnut, having previously ordered carriages to meet him at the railway station. He was accompanied by five gentlemen of his suite, and sent the same evening for Mons. Francisque S. de Le Forest, the French Consul at this port, for instructions as to the manner of spending to-day and Friday. The ut most seclusion governed his movements, and no person were admitted to the chambers unless property accredited by the Consul. The royal party started this morning, at eleven o'clock, with the Minister from Washington, the suite, and Mons. Do Forest—seven persons in all. They drove rapidly in the La Pierre teams to the United States Mint where the full operation of coinnge was explained. The Prince listened in silence, but the members of the suite were sufficiently inquisitive to evoke all the facts which he wished to know. The carriage then proceeded through the Park bore little comparizon with the New York Ceutral, but admired the fine rolling country along the banks of the Schoylkill. The teams drove across to the Ridge road, past the numerous cemeteries, and the party-dis road, past the numerous cemeteries, and the partygus-mounted at Laurel Hill, and spent an hour in walking through the grounds among the fine tombs and statuary. At the Falls they took a lunch and proceeded back to the city by way of the Wissahickon and Germantown. The former is a beautiful creek, not unlike parts of the Hariem river. In the morning, also, Prince Napoleon visited the Eastern Penitentiary on Cherry Hill. He was received by two of the inspectors, and the party examined the arrangement of the cells and the economy of the prison, with a thoroughness of inquiry and observation which called forth the utmost exertion of the officers to respond correctly. The Prince professed to be greatly mpressed with the system of solitary, or rather separate, confinement; and the crimes and punishments of some of the incarcerated were related in brief by Richard in imitation of a similar feat at that place by Albert Edward, Prince of England, on the occasion of his late visit to this country.

During the entire ride the privacy of the suite was preserved inviolate, although a number of peering eyes aus pected the character of the visiters, and by these maniestations the reporters were enabled to follow the teams and get wind of the royal company.

On the way the birthplace of David Rittenhouse, the in any city by the silence of the populace, and will at all places insist upon privacy, even in Washington. He has already accepted President Lincoln's invitation to dine a the White House; but will be quartered at the dwelling o the French Minister during his time of tenure. He stated yesterday that he would not stop nore, but go directly through to Washington.

The party were protty well ducked yesterday, while riding, owing to a heavy fail of rain. They dined at the REGATTA AT HARLEM.—Two very pleasant boat races took place at Harlem yesterday afternoon, from the club house, foot of 114th street, and occasioned quite a little excitement among the lovers of aquatics. The first race distance of ten miles, for two prizes-to wit: a silk champion flag and the entrance fee. The boats were champion flag and the entrance fee. The boats were entered as follows:—The Emma, by D. Golden; the Anne, by D. P. Ingraham, Jr., and the McGowan, by S. Rayner. The boats got in in the order given above. The second race was between rewboats of saventree feet and under, to be rowed by one man, with one pair of sculls, and a distance of five miles. The prizes were for this best heat $10, and next best the entrance money. The boats contending were the Maggie, Robert Foster, H. W. Genet and Emma. The Maggie won the race in forty-three minutes, coming in about one length aboat of the Robert Foster.

That gentleman instantly plunged in, seized him and held him up until he was rescued. Such acts deserve a public acknowledgment, particularly as it is not the first time we have had to record a similar sknowledgment in favor of Mr. Rabineau.

THE SOLDIERS' RETURN.

ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION OF THE TWELFTH REGIMENT.

The Twelfth regiment New York State Militia, Colonel Daniel Butterfield, left Philadelphia on their return from the seat of war at eleven o'clock yesterday morning, and arrived in the steamboat John Potter at pier No. 1, North river, precisely at seven o'clock last evening. It will be remembered that this regiment were among the most prompt to respond to the call of the President of the United States for men to defend the Union. They took their departure from New York and their friends on the 21st of Aprit-immediately after the Seventh-and pro-ceeded to Martinsburg, where they were placed in General Patterson's column, now under command of General Banks. They also made the advance from Chambersburg to Winchester. At the expiration of their term of service the men volunteered to remain ten days over their stipulated term of service, in order to allow General Bank's to reinforce his column by volunteer regiments; but the expected reinforcements having arrived before that time, the regiment was allowed to come home after General Bank's had passed a high encominum on the men for their soldier-like bearing and strict obedience to military law. The last place the regiment was stationed at was Harper's Ferry. As the regiment, according to despatch, were expected to arrive in this city at ten o'clock yestorday morning, the reserve, to the number of some four hundred, were on the gus wise to have everything in readiness to give them a fitting reception. The headquarters of the Twenth, No. 594 Broadway, were decorated with flags, banners and streamers, which fluttered gracefully in front of the building. Conspicuous amongst this forest of bunting were the words, in bold letters.

rival. The Battery was crowded with people, many of whem were the particular friends and admirers of the regiment.

At seyon o clock the steamboat John Potter hove to alongsfile pier No. 1, amidst the cheers of the people and several reports from a cannon stationed on the Battery, the landing of the men was soon completed, when they proceeded on their march up Breadway to Union square, Hook and Ladder Company No. 6 having the right of the line, beind which were the reserve of the regiment, and a squad of polecemen, under Deputy Superintendent Carpenter. The regiment followed receiving the honors of the crowds of people assembled in Proadway as they passed. The following fire apparatus were stationed at different parts of Broadway, those worked by steam whistling it off as the regiment passed.—Steam for enginer Nos. 38, 42, 2 and 47; 60 hose, 25 hose, 21 engine, 30 engine, hook and ladder 12, and hose 1. All along the route the ovation was continuous and hearty. All the hotels save the New York, showed their love for the Union in various ways. As the regiment passed the New York thotel a few ladies were observed standing on the piazza looking languidly down on the procession, without the slightest sign of vitality or entinusiaem in thoir composition. Arrived at Union square, the regiment marched round it, and halted in front of Dr. Chower's church, where they were dismissed.

Three fourths of the men express their determination to go back to fight they are now a hardy set of fellows, nurred to hardships and fatigue in any and all phases.

BROUGHT BY THE MAJOR—THE ORDER OF MAJOR

When the national capital was threatened by the rebel hordes of the South and a call issued for the militia of va rious States to go to its defence, New York State nobly responded. Among the regiments, who volunteered their services was the Twentieth, of Ulater county, Col. George W. Pratt; and at the close of the month of April tha regiment arrived in this city in full strength, duly armed an equipped as the law directs. They remained in this city until the 7th of May, when, after considerable trouble and fearing to be sent home again, the regiment was called upon to proceed to Baltimore.

Since their absence they were six weeks at Annapolis

Major General Dix, commander of the Ampartment of Maryland, expressed his appreciation of the worth of Major Hardenbergh Dr. solvusting him with a delicate as well as important duty—being no less than the transfer of the Baltimore Folice Commissioners and six other Febel prisoners at Fort McHenry to Fort Labyutte, in our harbon. Major General Communding.

The prisoners were duly delivered at Fort Isfayette, Lieutenant Charles O. Wood, the commander of the station having duly scknowledged the formal delivery of the same. Major Hardenbergh rejoined his regiment at the Park, and proceeded with them, at five o'clock, on their march for home. The regiment embarked on board the stemboart Manhattan, at the foot of Jay street, Northriver, at six o'clock, and were soot on the way to Kingston, where they will arrive at seven o'clock this evening. Captain Roosa, of Brigadier General Sampson's staft, ex-Licuteaunt Colonel Schoonmaker, the Kingston Brass Band and a host of citizons from Ulster county, formed the escort for this gailant regiment.

The reception the corps will receive at Kingston will, no doubt, be on a grand scale, as preparations to that effect have been going on for some days past. It is understood that the Twentieth regiment will immediately re-onlist under the second call for troops, and recruit up to the maximum number.

The field and staff officers were all mounted on fine horses, which they took with them from Ulster county. The following is a fist of the field and staff officers of the Twentieth regiment—

Colonel, George W. Pratt, Lieutenant Colonel, Theodore B. Yates, Major, J. B. Hardenbergh; Adjutant, M. W. McEntee; Hospital Surgeon, A. Crispel, Regimental Sargeon, C. L. MAJOR COOK'S PLYING ARTHLERY.

MAJOR COOK'S FLYING ARTILLERY.

Major Cook's Battery of the Boston Flying Artillery consisted of six six-pounder riled cannons, six caissons, one battery wagen and one forge wagen, eighty horses and a hundred and eighteen men. They have for the last three months been stationed in and about the city of Baltimore, and have done good service in preserving order in that city. They proceeded to Boston yesteroday afternoon by the Stonington route, where they will recruit, and in a short time expect to take the field again with a force of a hundred and sixty men.

Accompanying Major Cook's battery was the Third buttainon of Mussachusetts Rifles, three hundred nee, lately known as the Devin Rifles. Capitain Sprague, of Worcester, is at present in command of this battainon, which lately formed part of the garrison of Fort McHenry, where they did good service in strengthening the defances and remounting a large number of guns. The battailon proceeded to Boston yesterday afternoon by the Norwich route. consisted of six six-pounder rided cannons, six calssons the men had thrown their guess away at the battle of Bell run, when in fact the regime at was not at any time engaged in a light, but remained in the vicinity of Washington during the whole these of their service. The true reason of their not being armed was that they had left their gues in Washington, as they had no further use for them, and the government needed them, as they were of a superior quality. The men otherwise were fully equipped, having their haveraschs, canteens, &c., with them. They bear the appearance of having been worked hard, and if they did not have the honor of being engaged in a fight it was not their fault, as the will was there, if not the way. In conversing with the men we discovered that, with very few exceptions, they are anxious to return, but would prefer waiting until the intense heat of summer shall have passed away. As the regiment has not been engaged in any conflict, they return numerically as strong as they departed.

The regiment has such a corps in course of formation, and an answer has been sent to the miners to that effect. Consequently, on Monday, the addition of three dones stalwart men, well used to mining implements, and calculated to be of invaluable service in a fight at close quarters, is likely to be made to the regiment.
